Philosophy

Students majoring in philosophy at Mount Mary College are exposed to a thoughtful examination of the human experience. Philosophy emphasizes reasoning, reflection, an awareness of the “big picture,” and sensitivity to different experiences, opinions and beliefs. Mount Mary’s Philosophy Department offers a flexible, focused approach to philosophy that is especially designed to appeal to the concerns and interests of women.

The study of philosophy seeks to cultivate an appreciation of the recurring questions of philosophy, as well as the ability to approach these questions with intelligence and integrity. The unique character of philosophical questions is that they must be answered for every generation.

Philosophy can be either a stand-alone major or second major complementing work in another academic area. A minor in philosophy is also available. Most philosophy majors at Mount Mary College elect to pursue a double major. Students typically link philosophy with a career-oriented major, but philosophy has been paired effectively with every major offered by the College. Students who decide to double major need to meet the requirements of both curriculums.

As either a major or a minor, philosophy adds an important and résumé-building dimension to any area of study by giving it intellectual depth and an ethical focus. The program emphasizes critical thinking and logical reasoning — important “life skills” that are helpful in any career or as preparation for advanced study.
